Along the Trail

By J. B. YULE

A TRIP TO VALLEYVIEW

On Sunday of a week ago I had settled down in the editorial chair and was perusing the dailies to see what was happening on the outside when A. E. H. Murphy, representing the Peace River Country, called on me. He had been in the Valleyview area for a few days and had just returned from a trip to Valleyview. He had been in the Valleyview area for a few days and had just returned from a trip to Valleyview.

The first stop was made at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Murphy, where we were met by their son, Mr. L. J. Murphy, Jr., and his wife, Mrs. L. J. Murphy, Jr.

In a short while we were at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Murphy, where we were met by their son, Mr. L. J. Murphy, Jr., and his wife, Mrs. L. J. Murphy, Jr.

The rest of the Murphy trail now leads to a small town, which is located in the Grosvenor area. Here we found the proprietor of the store, Mr. L. J. Murphy, and his wife, Mrs. L. J. Murphy.

Here we met the McArthur family, Mr. and Mrs. McArthur, and their children. They were very friendly and showed us around the place.

Just as we were about to pull out, Mr. McArthur and his wife, Mrs. McArthur, came to see us off. They were very friendly and showed us around the place.

On the edge of the Indian Reserve we noted George Tate's newly erected log home and store. We were very friendly and showed us around the place.

As the Peace River was doing so well, we were very friendly and showed us around the place.

At this time we were in the north country, and we were very friendly and showed us around the place.

which was built about two years ago. From here we called on Mr. Clough, who had returned a few days previously from Fort Chipewyan, 200 miles down the Athabasca River from Fort McMurray.

Mr. Clough said that he had not seen Mr. Clough, the veteran fur trader, whom he found enjoying good health.

In answer to a question put by the writer, Mr. Clough said that there was considerable activity in the North and Chipewyan was a prosperous point.

The Indians and halfbreeds have good new boats fitted with outboard engines," said Mr. Clough, who added that the village has some five hundred people.

Mr. Clough stated that he went down with a boat with kicker attached, which he sold and came back by the Northern Transportation boat to McMurray.

After the pleasant and instructive chat the Plymouth was turned in the direction of Valleyview. The night was a beautiful one and before I realized it we were in front of the house owned and operated by Mrs. Chamberlain and son, V. L. Among others met was Theodore Walters, a very old friend of the district who had just been awarded the contract to survey the road from Calgary to the Peace River.

Others met were the Scheraga family, the latter formerly of the Peace River, and the son, one of the original settlers in the district.

We were informed that the estimated wheat average was placed at between 25 and 30 bushels. All crops were looking well, the hay crop being particularly heavy.

We accompanied Mr. Adolphson over to his home, situated about a third of a mile away.

As we approached the house a rare sight was witnessed. Hundreds of swallows hovered around the house.

Mr. Adolphson told us that the swallows had been coming to his farm for the last five years and leave every year early in August.

On the way home from the Lake Peace we saw a large number of swallows. They were very friendly and showed us around the place.

After spending a day in Seattle they continued on their way, Bert saying after his arrival: "The further I got away from the Peace River country, the better I liked it when I got home. MOBILE GAS CHAMBERS TOUR BRITAIN INSTRUCTING CIVILIANS

A demonstration of one of the new British Home Office gas chambers was photographed at the Motor Driving School at the Police College at Hendon. In the picture members of the police force are testing their gas masks in one of the mobile gas chambers. These chambers are motor vans with specially constructed gas-tight bodies in which a gas cloud can be created so that persons receiving anti-gas training may have the experience of wearing respirators in gas. The vans will be located throughout the British Isles.

FAMOUS CHINESE GENERAL "HAILED" AND "ASSAILED" FOR RECENT ACTS

Largely through the efforts of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, Chinese Generalissimo, the civil war which threatened to engulf China has been overcome, and because of his great effort, in spite of it, Kai-shek has been acclaimed and acclaimed. With one exception, all provinces not held by the Communist armies or Tokyo-controlled puppets have been consolidated under Kai-shek's banner. His remarkable success has been hailed by Japan, which considers him a man of moderation and gentle virtues, but his efforts are not so regarded by his own son, who considers him a traitor of our fatherland, and contends he has "sold" China to Japan. The Literary Digest map above gives a graphic description of the present situation in China, and notes particularly the provinces which have been unified by Kai-shek's recent campaign. At the right is a picture of the victorious Chinese general.

SPECIAL STAMPS ISSUED

Dedication of Canada's war memorial on Vimy Ridge was commemorated in two special stamps issued by the French government. A special postal an airmail service was in operation at Vimy during the dedication, and letters and postcards mailed from there July 26 bore a special stamp with the inscription: "Vimy, France, Canadian Memorial, July 26, 1936."

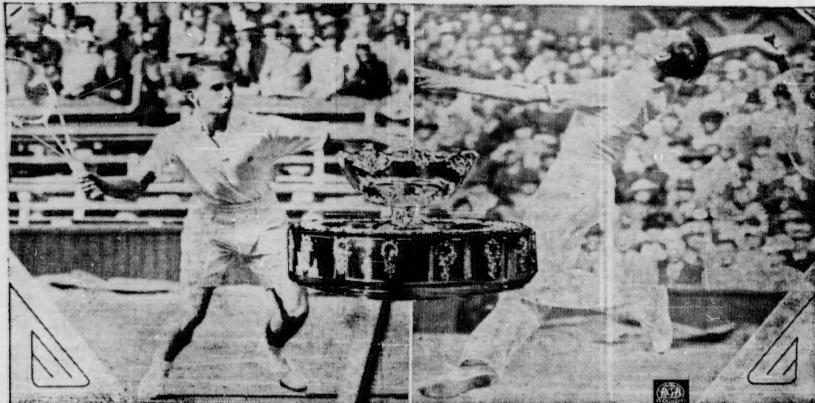

Alfred de Possesse, French engraver, has presented the Canadian Legion official party with a Vimy memorial medal. One side shows the monument in its entirety, with the inscription: "In Memoriam," while the other gives another aspect of the memorial with the words "Canada-France."

The medal, executed in gold, will be presented to the King, one in silver to Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Canadian Minister of Justice, and one in bronze to Marshal Henri Petain.

PEERLESS PERRY AND TIRELESS AUSTIN DEFEND DAVIS CUP

The lawn tennis team of Fred Perry and W. H. "Bunny" Austin, England's No. 1 and No. 2 ranking players, will go down in Davis Cup history as one of the most amazing teams ever produced. Austin, particularly, is the standout of the British team, because he always seems able to do the "impossible." Since 1933, when he helped Perry win the Davis Cup from France, Austin has not dropped a single match in the challenge round until this year, when he beat Jack Crawford of Australia, but lost to Quist, the Australian champion. Perry, undoubtedly the most colorful lawn tennis star England has ever produced, seems to have reached an unbeatable position in the lawn tennis firmament. A year ago he was injured in the American championships and experts predicted the end of his reign, but he returned to remarkable form during the British championships this year. At the left is Austin, and at the right, Fred Perry. Inset is the Davis Cup with its new base.

LEADERS OF TWO NATIONS MEET AT QUEBEC

Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King and President J. D. Roosevelt hold an animated conversation. Quebec gave an enthusiastic reception to the distinguished visitor.

CANADA PLEASED WITH U. S. PRESIDENT'S VISIT

QUEBEC, Que. — President Roosevelt's talks with the Governor General, Lord Tweedsmuir, and later with the Prime Minister, W. L. Mackenzie King, during his visit to Quebec, were behind closed doors and in perfect quiet. High on the ramparts above the St. Lawrence, in the innermost recesses of the old fortifications, the Governor General's quarters were a haven of quiet.

When the party finally went in through the white door, the world was shut outside and what went on within nobody knows. Later in the afternoon the party reassembled and went for a drive, and at 5:30 o'clock arrived at Voltaire's Cove station. There was some chatting and the President reiterated his invitations to Lord Tweedsmuir and Mr. King to visit Washington.

The Hon. Martin Burrell, the parliamentary librarian, a former cabinet minister, stopped forward and the President shook him warmly by the hand. "The sure and give me love to your wife and come and see us soon," he said.

There was a final exchange of conversation between the Governor General and the President, in which they expressed their confidence that good results might be accomplished. To the Prime Minister the President also had a parting word or two.

The train left at 8 o'clock, and on the way to Montreal the President entertained some of his entourage to dinner. He was much gratified with the outcome of his visit and moved by the warmth of the welcome given to him.

Canadians without exception expressed themselves as highly pleased with the visit and with the personality of the President. Every time he appeared in public the streets were lined with people and he was cheered.

There was some puzzlement over the fact that the Governor General's car carrying the President was always followed by another car full of men without official status, who even presided the Lieutenant Governor and the Prime Minister. These were the President's G-Men, who stuck closer than a shadow despite the protection of the secret-coated R.C.M.P., which hitherto has been considered sufficient to guard distinguished visitors to Canada.

When the President delivered his address the G-men lined up in front of the platform, the R.C.M.P. were unobtrusively to the sides and rear—Christian Science Monitor.
